Chapter 28: The Duties of the Apostles and Dark Apostles

In the grand design of the Divine Triad, the roles of the Apostles of God and the Dark Apostles are both distinct and vital to maintaining the stability of the multiverses and the realms under their protection. Each race has been assigned a specific responsibility, one focused on observation and action at the frontlines, while the other guards from the rear, ensuring the flow of life and order.

1. The Apostles of God: Guardians of the Frontlines

The Apostles of God are the celestial warriors of the Divine Triad, tasked with governing and observing the vast expanse of the multiverses and their countless realms. These beings, created from the primordial light, serve as the watchful eyes of the Triad, keeping an ever-vigilant gaze over all that exists.

Duties of the Apostles of God:

Governance and Observation: The Apostles of God are entrusted with the responsibility of maintaining the balance of all realms. They monitor the realms, ensuring that the forces of creation remain in harmony and that no realm falls into chaos. Their knowledge spans across the multiverses, allowing them to act as rulers, diplomats, and overseers of divine law. They report directly to the Divine Triad, ensuring that the higher beings are always informed of the current state of affairs within each realm.

Defenders on the Frontlines: In times of conflict or upheaval, the Apostles of God are the first to engage. They stand at the frontlines of any battle, whether against rogue entities, chaos-causing forces, or those who would dare defy the Divine Triad. They wield immense power, commanding both divine light and the forces of creation to protect the realms from all threats. Whether in cosmic battles or in the defense of individual worlds, the Apostles of God are always ready to act as the first line of defense against any intruders or invaders.

Intervention in Times of Crisis: When a particular realm or multiverse faces an imminent collapse, the Apostles of God are sent to restore balance. Their intervention often comes in the form of purification, renewal, or direct confrontation with destructive forces. They bring harmony to the chaos, healing the realms that are on the brink of destruction.

The Celestial Watch: The Apostles of God also take on the role of watching over dimensional rifts—passages between realms that sometimes open unexpectedly. These rifts are often dangerous and unstable, and the Apostles of God are tasked with investigating them, sealing them when necessary, or guiding those who pass through them to their proper realms.

2. The Dark Apostles: Guardians of the Rear

While the Apostles of God serve as the visible force of the Divine Triad, the Dark Apostles are tasked with guarding the multiverses and realms from the rear, ensuring that no chaos slips unnoticed into the fabric of existence. Created from the primordial darkness, they represent the necessary balance to the Apostles of God, ensuring that the forces of destruction, decay, and entropy are kept in check.

Duties of the Dark Apostles:

Guardians of the Multiverses: The Dark Apostles serve as the backbone of the Divine Triad's protection efforts. They act as guardians of the rear, ensuring that any disruptive forces from beyond the known realms are contained. They work quietly in the background, monitoring for any signs of collapse, contamination, or corruption in the fabric of reality. Should any hidden threats emerge from within the multiverses or through the cracks between dimensions, the Dark Apostles are the first to contain and neutralize them.

Taming the Dimensional Refugees: One of the most critical duties of the Dark Apostles is to guide and tame the dimensional refugees who stumble upon the realms through dimensional rifts. These rifts are unpredictable and often bring beings from distant worlds, alien to the realities they find themselves in. Some of these refugees are hostile, confused, or destructive; others are lost souls in search of a new home. The Dark Apostles are tasked with welcoming these refugees, assessing whether they can be accepted into the realm's society, and guiding them in their adaptation to their new environment.

Dimensional Harmonization: As part of their role, the Dark Apostles also ensure the harmonization of different dimensions. They use their deep connection to primordial darkness to influence the flow of energy between the realms, ensuring that the natural order remains intact. By controlling the subtle forces of entropy, the Dark Apostles maintain the proper balance between creation and destruction. They prevent the multiverses from spiraling into an out-of-control collapse, stabilizing the energy flow between realms and ensuring that no single dimension dominates the others.

Ambassadors of the Divine Triad's Will: While the Apostles of God are often seen as the direct agents of the Divine Triad, the Dark Apostles also serve as ambassadors, though in a more subtle manner. They traverse the darker corners of the multiverses, ensuring that the forces of shadow do not grow too powerful. They hold meetings with other rulers and factions, delivering messages from the Divine Triad, enforcing their decrees, and ensuring that the balance is not disturbed.

The Symbiotic Relationship: Apostles of God & Dark Apostles

Although the Apostles of God and the Dark Apostles serve different functions within the grand structure of the Divine Triad, their roles are deeply interconnected. Both are essential to the stability of the multiverse, working in harmony to maintain order and balance across the vast realms.

A Watchful Balance: The Apostles of God represent the force of creation and light, acting as protectors and warriors on the frontlines. In contrast, the Dark Apostles embody entropy and darkness, ensuring the rear is well-guarded and that the balance of chaos is kept in check. Together, their duties prevent any one force—whether light, darkness, creation, or destruction—from overwhelming the others.

Unified by Loyalty: Both the Apostles of God and the Dark Apostles share a common bond of loyalty and submission to the will of the Divine Triad. They understand the gravity of their tasks and remain ever faithful to the Triad's guidance. This unity of purpose, despite their contrasting methods and duties, ensures that they operate seamlessly within the greater design of the multiverse.

Guardians of the Unknown: Where the Apostles of God ensure that the realms remain in balance at the front, the Dark Apostles ensure that the unseen, often forgotten corners of existence are watched over. Together, they form an impenetrable defense for all realms, ensuring that no threat, whether external or internal, can destabilize the multiverse.

Conclusion: The Dual Guardianship of the Divine Triad

The Apostles of God and the Dark Apostles serve as two sides of the same coin, each fulfilling a role that complements the other. Together, they ensure that the multiverses and realms are protected from both the forces of creation and destruction, light and dark. Through their dedication to the Divine Triad, they have established an unbreakable system of balance—one that will last for eons, safeguarding the delicate equilibrium of existence.
